UTA String Preparatory Program

Music Department ♦ University of Texas at Arlington ♦ Box 19105 ♦ Arlington, TX 76019

The UTA String Prep Program is a perfect opportunity for your string student to broaden their education on their instrument. We offer more flexibility in your student's lesson because you can choose between 30, 45 or 60-minute lessons, you also decide between a 12 or 14 week semester. Every private teacher has a different schedule, so we are sure we have one just for you. Also, there is flexibility in how you pay: you can pay in full at the beginning, or you can pay in installments that are outlined above.

Each semester your student has the opportunity to play in a String Preparatory Recital at Irons Recital Hall on the campus of UTA. In addition to the performance experience, we arrange special Master Classes with the UTA faculty, who also will be monitoring our teacher's effectiveness at teaching your student. In this way you will be able to see your child's growth on their instrument.

In the interest of your student's future professional lives, we have listed some guidelines for taking music lessons that will clarify some very common responsibilities and obligations that both teachers and students have.

- A. Respect between teacher and student is very important. The teacher must respect the individual needs of the student, designing methods and approaches best suited for their progress.
- B. Always be prepared for your lesson. This means practicing what was assigned and bringing your instrument, music, pencil and other things you are told to have.
- C. Scheduled lesson times must be respected. Remember you are paying for the teacher to keep an open space on their schedule for your student-never be late because this disrupts the trust and respect between you and the teacher.
- D. Always give 24 hours of notice if you cannot attend a lesson. The teacher is not required to contact you if you do not show up. Please contact your teacher and reschedule the lesson in a timely manner.

We are dedicated to providing quality service to you and hope that if you have any questions, concerns or comments that you will contact us in the appropriate manner.
