Almost all classes online

Synchronous: meet at class time (at least some of the time) online/virtually using Teams, Zoom or something similar

Asynchronous: do not meet at class time.

Hybrid: some in-person meetings and some online

See inside for details...
SOCI 1200.001
PERSONAL AND PROFESSIONAL SUCCESS
HYBRID (mixture of in person & online)
This course is required of all entering students and prepares them for personal, academic and professional success.
HYMW 8-8:50 am
LaDorna McGee ladorna@uta.edu

SOCI 1310
INTRODUCTION TO POP CULTURE
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
This course introduces students to the role of popular culture in American society. It examines culture as a process through which people make symbolic meaning out of the world. The course explores the creation, production, dissemination, reception and consumption of popular culture.

SOCI 1310.001
Jessica Williams jessica.williams3@uta.edu

SOCI 1311
INTRODUCTION TO SOCIOLOGY
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
This is the core course in Sociology and it serves several purposes. It provides students with an overview in the field, offering the student basic knowledge about Sociology and the impact of social forces on oneself and the society he/she lives in. Students are introduced to the sociological imagination and encouraged to view the world in which they live through a number of theoretical frameworks. Students will be introduced to the importance of research-based sociology as well as applied sociology and encouraged to consider how sociology can speak and be applied to their own disciplines.

Sec. 002 and 005  Dr. Krystal Beamon kbeamon@uta.edu
Sec 001 700 and 701  Dr. Dorothy Kalanzi kalanzi@uta.edu
Sec. 003, 007, 008 009, 010 Faye Hanson-Evans mfaye@uta.edu
Sec 004 Dr. Jason Shelton jshelton@uta.edu
Sec 006 Jessica Williams jessica.williams3@uta.edu

SOCI 2312.001
Social Problems
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
This course is a brief introduction to current social issues. This text seeks to understand social problems today, and presents facts and discussion to help the student better understand the world around us.
Faye Hanson mfaye@uta.edu

SOCI 3313.001
CRIMINOLOGY
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
Crime-related social issues. Defining and measuring crime, surveying major theoretical explanations of criminal behavior, and society's formal responses to crime and criminals.

Dr. Sara Skiles duToit sdutoit@uta.edu

SOCI 3317.001
INDIVIDUAL AND SOCIETY
ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
How society influences individual thought, feeling, and behavior. Includes interpersonal perception, attitudes, norms, roles, conformity, and such social issues as aggression, helping behavior, prejudice, and interpersonal attraction.

Dr. Robert Young bob.young@uta.edu

SOCI 3327.001
INTERCULTURAL INTERACTION
HYBRID (mixture of in-person and online)
Patterns and variations in interactions involving people from different cultures and subcultures. Intercultural interaction, both within multicultural societies and between persons from different societies.

LaDorna McGee ladorna@uta.edu

SOCI 3328
MARITAL & SEXUAL LIFESTYLES
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
Contemporary American lifestyles selected from: singles, traditional marriage, homosexuals, single-parent families, open marriage, non-marital sexuality, cohabitation, dual-career marriage, childless couples, egalitarian marriage, families in later life. Offered as DIVR 3328, SOCI 3328 and WOMS 3328; credit will be granted only once.

SOCI 3328.001, 002, 003
Dr. Sara Skiles du Toit sdutoit@uta.edu

SOCI 3331.001
(cross-listed with WOMS 3331.001)
SOCIOLOGY OF FAMILY
ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
This course focuses on the family as a social institution, while paying attention to contemporary issues of importance to families. We will pay particular attention to the variety of forms that families take as well as the conceptual tools that can help us make sense of those forms. In this course, we will work toward developing the ability to think critically about how families are organized, how they might be organized differently, and the implications of various family forms for individuals and institutions.

Dr. Beth Anne Shelton shelton@uta.edu

Scare Away Hunger Project
SOCI 3334.001, .002, .600
SOCIOLOGY OF GENDER
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
Examination of theoretical and empirical approaches to understanding the formation of gender. Assesses individual and structural dimensions of gender in various social institutions including work, education, and families. Offered as SOCI 3334 and WOMS 3334; credit will be granted only once.

Faye Hanson-Evans mfaye@uta.edu

SOCI 3336.001
SOCIAL INEQUALITY
(cross-listed with AAST)
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
Examines the processes, characteristics, and consequences of social inequality in society. Topics include the social class structure, status groups, and elite power structure as they influence people’s life chances. Offered as AAST 3336 and SOCI 3336; credit will be granted in only one department.

Dr. Dorothy Kalanzi kalanzi@uta.edu

SOCI 3347.001
ENVIRONMENTAL SOCIOLOGY
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
Explores the causes, consequences, and potential resolutions of environmental issues as they relate to human society. Topics include the social roots of environmental problems, inequalities in the distribution of environmental risks and harms, and new directions in sustainable development.

Dr. Kelly Bergstrand kelly.bergstrand@uta.edu

SOCI 3351.001
WORK, OCCUPATIONS AND CAREER DEVELOPMENT
ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
Combines applied information on career development with a sociological perspective on work and occupations. Career development topics include academic majors and career options, networking, career mentorship and sponsorship, job searches, resume writing, and interviewing. Other topics include the historical development of work, occupational structures (professional, managerial, service, and blue-collar occupations), inequalities, work satisfaction, work-life balance, and the future of work.

MWF 11:1-1:50pm
Dr. Robert Kunovich kunovich@uta.edu

SOCI 3352.001
SOCIAL STATISTICS
ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
The social sciences and related applied fields today require some familiarity with statistical methods of data analysis. This course introduces a set of concepts that will help students understand numerical description, inference and explanation applied to human society and social behavior. Emphasis is on statistical reasoning and interpretation; what statistics to use for particular purposes and how to make sense of the results.

MWF 11-11:50am
Dr. Robert Kunovich kunovich@uta.edu

SOCI 3373.001
SOCIOLOGICAL THEORY THROUGH POPULAR CULTURE
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
This course introduces students to major theories and figures who have provided sociology with interpretations of the social world. Students will consider how sociologists use theoretical concepts to understand social interactions, social problems, and social change. Students will apply sociological theories to social phenomena. Prerequisite: junior standing or permission of the instructor.

Dr. David Arditi darditi@uta.edu

SOCI 3334.001, .002, .600
SOCIOLOGY OF GENDER
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
Examination of theoretical and empirical approaches to understanding the formation of gender. Assesses individual and structural dimensions of gender in various social institutions including work, education, and families. Offered as SOCI 3334 and WOMS 3334; credit will be granted only once.

Faye Hanson-Evans mfaye@uta.edu

SOCI 3336.001
SOCIAL INEQUALITY
(cross-listed with AAST)
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
Examines the processes, characteristics, and consequences of social inequality in society. Topics include the social class structure, status groups, and elite power structure as they influence people’s life chances. Offered as AAST 3336 and SOCI 3336; credit will be granted in only one department.

Dr. Dorothy Kalanzi kalanzi@uta.edu

SOCI 3347.001
ENVIRONMENTAL SOCIOLOGY
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
Explores the causes, consequences, and potential resolutions of environmental issues as they relate to human society. Topics include the social roots of environmental problems, inequalities in the distribution of environmental risks and harms, and new directions in sustainable development.

Dr. Kelly Bergstrand kelly.bergstrand@uta.edu

SOCI 3351.001
WORK, OCCUPATIONS AND CAREER DEVELOPMENT
ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
Combines applied information on career development with a sociological perspective on work and occupations. Career development topics include academic majors and career options, networking, career mentorship and sponsorship, job searches, resume writing, and interviewing. Other topics include the historical development of work, occupational structures (professional, managerial, service, and blue-collar occupations), inequalities, work satisfaction, work-life balance, and the future of work.

MWF 11-11:50am
Dr. Robert Kunovich kunovich@uta.edu

SOCI 3352.001
SOCIAL STATISTICS
ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
The social sciences and related applied fields today require some familiarity with statistical methods of data analysis. This course introduces a set of concepts that will help students understand numerical description, inference and explanation applied to human society and social behavior. Emphasis is on statistical reasoning and interpretation; what statistics to use for particular purposes and how to make sense of the results.

MWF 11-11:50am
Dr. Robert Kunovich kunovich@uta.edu

SOCI 3373.001
SOCIOLOGICAL THEORY THROUGH POPULAR CULTURE
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
This course introduces students to major theories and figures who have provided sociology with interpretations of the social world. Students will consider how sociologists use theoretical concepts to understand social interactions, social problems, and social change. Students will apply sociological theories to social phenomena. Prerequisite: junior standing or permission of the instructor.

Dr. David Arditi darditi@uta.edu

Student Presenting Research
SOCIOLOGY
Fall 2020
(ONLINE VERSION INDICATED)

SOCI 3462.001, 002
SOCIAL RESEARCH & LAB
ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
Required of all sociology majors. The major quantitative and qualitative techniques for sociological research. Setting up and implementing a research project, interpreting findings, and preparing a required final paper. Lab includes design, sampling, instrumentation, data analysis, and writing results. Formerly SOCI 3305; credit will be granted only once. Prerequisite: SOCI 3352 or permission of the instructor.

Dr. Robert Young bob.young@uta.edu

SOCI 4320.001, 002
MEDICAL SOCIOLOGY
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
The relationships between different societies and social groups and their incidence of disease and mortality. Also examines culture-related causes of disease and treatment approaches, medicine as an occupation, healer-patient relationships, and the modern hospital as a bureaucratic organization.

Dr. Dorothy Kalanzi kalanzi@uta.edu

SOCI 4331.001
Race, Ethnicity & Family Formation
ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
Investigates the ways in which cultural understandings of race and ethnicity have shaped historical and contemporary variations in family structure, familial experiences, and the legal possibilities for family formation. Junior standing (60 hours) or permission of the instructor required to enroll in this course.

Dr. Heather Jacobson jacobson@uta.edu

SOCI 4341.001
INEQUALITIES IN PUBLIC EDUCATION (cross-listed w/ AAST 4341)
ONLINE ASYNCHRONOUS
This course examines the manner in which race, ethnicity, and class affect the quality of education in the public schools. Topics include the resegregation of schools, class and race based achievement and funding gaps, and the role the schools play in reproducing inequality. This course has a service learning component and requires volunteering in programs designed to reduce inequality in the school inequality in the schools. Offered as AAST 4341 and SOCI 4341; credit will be granted in only one department.

Dr. Krystal Beamon kbeamon@uta.edu

SOCI 4365.001
READING THE QUALITATIVE CLASSICS
ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
What makes a classic a classic? In this seminar course we will sample-read, examine, and analyze the wealth of "classic" ethnographies within the field of Sociology. We will study the classics with an eye to exploring the qualities that make these exemplary texts which often connect people to and excite them about the field of Sociology.

Dr. Heather Jacobson jacobson@uta.edu
SOCI 5301.001
SOCIOLOGICAL THEORY
A comprehensive review, analysis, and evaluation of the dominant conceptual perspectives, and their proponents, in sociological theory.

ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
M 4:00pm-6:50 pm
Dr. David Arditi darditi@uta.edu

SOCI 5304.001
SOCIAL STATISTICS
This course reviews univariate and bivariate descriptive and inferential statistics, focuses on ordinary least squares multivariate regression (including statistical control, path analysis, dummy variables, interaction effects nonlinear relationships, and regression assumptions), and introduces the generalized linear model (binary logistic regression). Emphasis is on the application of these methods to social science data.

ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
W 4:00pm-6:50 pm
Dr. Robert Kunovich kunovich@uta.edu

SOCI 5325.001
READING THE QUALITATIVE CLASSICS
What makes a classic a classic? In this seminar course we will sample-read, examine, and analyze the wealth of "classic" ethnographies within the field of Sociology. We will study the classics with an eye to exploring the qualities that make these exemplary texts which often connect people to and excite them about the field of Sociology.

ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
Th 2:00 pm-4:50 pm
Dr. Heather Jacobson jacobson@uta.edu

SOCI 5325.001
ENVIRONMENTAL SOCIOLOGY
This seminar course covers advanced topics in environmental sociology. We will investigate how human social organization affects environmental problems and responses. Specifically, we will explore topics such as environmental inequality, the social construction of nature, risk assessment, consumption and materialism, environmental values and identities, and environmental social movements. We will also look at social problems tied to environmental issues, such as those stemming from disasters, climate change, and food production. We will conclude with new directions in sustainable development.

ONLINE SYNCHRONOUS
T 2:00 pm-4:50 pm
Dr. Kelly Bergstrand kelly.bergstrand@uta.edu
MAJOR IN SOCIOLOGY
Interested in majoring in sociology? Schedule an appointment with the undergraduate advisor:

Ms. LaDorna McGee, M.A. ladorna@uta.edu UH 434

To schedule an Advising Appointment, please go to: Microsoft Bookings

MINOR IN SOCIOLOGY
The Sociology minor requires 6 courses (18 hours) of Sociology courses. Courses fulfilling core requirements count toward the minor.

If you have questions about scheduling an appointment, please call 817-272-2661. Leave a message and we will call you back the same day if before 5 pm or the next business day if after 5 pm.