The Department of Biology at the University of Texas Arlington (http://www.uta.edu/biology/) invites applications for a lecturer position in microbiology. Duties include teaching General Microbiology and Nursing Microbiology and coordinating and managing laboratory sections associated with these courses. The successful candidate will have a PhD in microbiology or closely related field, experience teaching large classes, experience in lab curriculum development and managing teaching assistants.

The Department of Biology at the University of Texas Arlington offers a bachelor of science degree in biology, a bachelor of science degree in microbiology, a bachelor of science degree in medical technology, and a bachelor of arts degree in biology. Student enrollment is approximately 2000 with enrollment approaching 200 in the General Microbiology courses.

Arlington is a city of approximately 365,000 and is conveniently located in the center of the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex. Within a 25-mile radius of the center of Arlington is a workforce of over two million people. The city has 82 public parks, including River Legacy Parks, a 1,300-acre nature preserve on the Trinity River. Arlington is the home of the Dallas Cowboys Stadium, the Texas Rangers Ballpark, and Six Flags Over Texas. Cost of living is considered low for a major metropolitan area. The Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, approximately 20 minutes from campus, is the fourth largest airport in the US. More information on the city of Arlington can be found at www.experiencearlington.org.

Applicants must apply by submitting application materials in PDF format to biosearch@uta.edu. Applicants should include in their application: 1) curriculum vitae, 2) teaching statement and philosophy, and 3) names and email addresses of four references. Review of applications will begin immediately and continue until the position is filled. A criminal background check will be conducted on finalists.

As an equal employment opportunity and affirmative action employer, it is the policy of The University of Texas at Arlington to promote and ensure equal employment opportunity for all individuals without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, age, sexual orientation, gender identity, disability, or veteran status.