

The GRADUATE PROGRAM IN PUBLIC POLICY at The University of Texas at Arlington

The Archer Center's Graduate Program in Public Policy was established in 2010 by The University of Texas System as a way to bring graduate and medical students interested in policy and politics to our nation's capital to learn about the federal government and public service. Graduate Fellows live, learn and working in the heart of Washington, D.C., during the summer. Learn more about this unparalleled educational and professional opportunity by attending an information session. Deadline: November 5, 2018.

FALL 2018 INFORMATION AND Q&A SESSIONS

Thursday, September 20

Information Session • 11:00 a.m.-12:00 noon

Q & A Session • 2:00-3:00 p.m.

Carolyn A. Barros Reading Room in the Honors College (100 College Hall)

Tuesday, October 4

Information Session • 2:00-3:00 p.m.

Carolyn A. Barros Reading Room in the Honors College (100 College Hall)

Tuesday, October 9

Information Session • 1:00-2:00 p.m.

Q & A Session • 2:00-3:00 p.m.

Carolyn A. Barros Reading Room in the Honors College (100 College Hall)

For more information, visit archercenter.org

Need special accommodations? Contact Perri Turner at pturner@uta.edu.