Applying the Golden Rule
Keith Burgess-Jackson
12 March 2016

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>If you want . . .</th>
<th>Then you should . . .</th>
<th>Which means . . .</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Your life respected.                 | Respect the lives of others. | • Don’t kill (i.e., commit murder or manslaughter)
|                                      |                       | • Don’t cause permanent loss of consciousness
|                                      |                       | • Don’t endanger                                                                    |
| Your bodily integrity respected.    | Respect the bodily integrity of others. | • Don’t disable or maim (i.e., commit mayhem)
|                                      |                       | • Don’t batter
|                                      |                       | • Don’t rape
|                                      |                       | • Don’t injure
|                                      |                       | • Don’t cause pain (including mental pain)                                            |
| Your autonomy respected.             | Respect the autonomy of others. | • Don’t coerce
|                                      |                       | • Don’t manipulate
|                                      |                       | • Don’t deceive (i.e., lie or withhold pertinent information)
|                                      |                       | • Don’t break promises (or other commitments)
|                                      |                       | • Don’t violate privacy
|                                      |                       | • Don’t exploit (i.e., take advantage of others)
|                                      |                       | • Repair (rectify) wrongs you have committed                                          |
| Your liberty respected.              | Respect the liberty of others. | • Don’t kidnap
|                                      |                       | • Don’t falsely imprison
|                                      |                       | • Don’t confine
|                                      |                       | • Don’t enslave
|                                      |                       | • Don’t stifle speech
|                                      |                       | • Don’t interfere with the exercise of people’s religion                              |
| Your property respected.             | Respect the property of others. | • Don’t steal
|                                      |                       | • Don’t embezzle
|                                      |                       | • Don’t defraud (i.e., obtain property by false pretenses)
|                                      |                       | • Don’t extort (i.e., commit blackmail)
|                                      |                       | • Don’t trespass
|                                      |                       | • Don’t commit arson                                                                 |
| Your reputation respected. | Respect the reputations of others. | • Don’t defame (i.e., libel or slander)
• Don’t dishonor
• Don’t insult
• Don’t spread rumors or gossip |
|------------------------------|------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Your security respected.    | Respect the security of others.    | • Don’t rob
• Don’t burglar
• Don’t assault
• Don’t threaten
• Don’t harass
• Don’t terrorize |
| The cooperation of others in mutually beneficial activities. | Cooperate with others in mutually beneficial activities. | • Don’t be a free rider |
| Help when you are in need.  | Help others when they are in need. | • Don’t be parsimonious (stingy) or selfish |
| To be treated fairly (justly). | Treat others fairly (justly). | • Don’t be unfair (unjust)
• Don’t cheat
• Don’t invidiously discriminate
• Don’t give people less (or more) than they deserve |
| Others to exercise due care in their activities. | Exercise due care in your activities. | • Don’t be careless, thoughtless, inconsiderate, or negligent
• Don’t be a nuisance
• Don’t give offense |
| Others to obey the law.     | Obey the law.                      | • Pay your taxes
• Perform jury duty
• Serve in the military when called upon to do so |
| Others to do their duty.    | Do your duty.                      | • Fulfill your (role) responsibilities as a doctor, nurse, police officer, lawyer, parent, teacher, &c. |